FOUR HUNDRED FUNERALS

Seven Hundred More Lying Sick.

Hearses Dashing Through the Streets.

A Touching Appeal for Help.

SHREVEPORT, LA., Sept. 29 .- Withi the last four days several of the most prominent and useful citizens of Shreveport have fallen victims to the epidemic. The population is fearfully thinned out by kness. The funeral hearses, fol through the streets like a section of artillery in battle seeking a position. A few are drummed up, the coffins are shoved in the hearse and driven rapidly to the cemetery. This is the case even with the most prominent citizens. The Howards have opened an orpha m and are feeding about two-thirds of the resident population. lewer deaths and new cases, because there are fewer people. The physicians appointed a committee last week to investigate the origin of the epidemic. The evidence already shows beyond question that the fever was imported from Cuba-Drs. To Our Fellow Citizens:

The yellow fever epidemic, that has already swept away more than 400 of this community, is still raging with unabated fary in our midst. We have now at least seven hundred sick, of all ages, sexes, colors and nationalities, all of whom, from the peculiar character of the disease, require constant and skillful nursing. In addition to this there are hundreds of people left without a cent and without employment. Among these there are many women and children. All of them must for the present be provided for by the Howwomen and children. All of them must for the present be provided for by the How-ard Association, for there is no work to do and no money to be had. The desti-tution in our midst is as heart rending as the disease and the deaths are fearful. The drain upon the funds of the Association has thus been enormous, and the liberal aid sent us by our sister cities is nearly exhausted. Under these aninful circumstances we are forced to painful circumstances we are forced to make this general appeal to the coun-try for additional aid. We have try for additional aid. We have people among us suffering, in want and dying from all sections of the Union and from all nations, and we teel that the great public heart will respond to this appeal extorted by the most dire necessity. sources are nearly exhaust the well are broken down; the poor are threatened with actual starvation, and the sick and dying are about to be deprived of the commonest comforts humanity can ofter them. We appeal not to our fellow-countrymen but to our fellow men for aid. [Signed] L. R. SIMMONS.

In his address at the Worcester county, Mass., Agricultural Fair, last week, Sena tor Boutwell said : I do not imagine that tor Boutwell said: I do not imagine that Massachusetts farmers are generally in debt, but I am quite sure that some of them have applied their annual earnings to the payment of mortgages, when the money could have been more profitably used for the improvement of the farms. It may seem strange that I should suggest that it is not wise always and under all circumstances, to pay debts. It is told of Mr. Webster—but whether with any foundation in truth. I cannot say—that in Mr. Webster—but whether with any foundation in truth, I cannot say—that in a speech at Philadelphia, on a festive occasion, when Pennsylvania was embarrassed and her credit impaired, he insisted that her public debt must be paid. Warmed by the occasion and arbitat he said. "The debt of Pennsylvania" ing classes, but the principal could only be paid from the accumulated wealth or from the income of the accumulated wealth of the country. The logic which forms the base of British policy on this subject is clear. The wealthy men of the country receive from the laboring classes interest at three per cent upon a debt which they themselves ought to pay. Hence the policy of Great Britain, dictated by the wealthy classes—no surplus income, no payment of the public debt. Her example teaches that public debts ought to be paid, and paid with the least possible delay; but private indebtedness, under some circumstances, ought to be paid, and paid with the least possible delay; but private indebtedness, under some circumstances, is a different thing. If a farmer has half the sum of money necessary to buy a farm suited to his tastes and plans, there can be no doubt of the wisdom of the purchase. The debt is secure; it is represented by real property. There is hardly any personal responsibility attaching to the debtor. He enjoys the use of the land upon the payment of a certain annual reat, subject only to the chance of rise or fall in the value of the estate. Every improvement us for his benefit. The debt is an annual charge to the extent of the interest—nothing more. If the farmer can use his annual gains in the development of his farm, in the increase of his products, he adds to his wealth more rapidly than he would by the payment of the debt. The debt is a fixed sum; the increase in the value of his farm shows his gains. It is certainly wiser to add to the value of the estate than to diminish the incumbrance while the owner has not all the means in his business that minish the incumbrance while the owner has not all the means in his business that he desires.

Business is decidedly improving at the Produce Exchange, and a much more hopeful feeling is expressed. In fact, business is said to be getting back into old channels, and the gloomy apprehensions as to foreign exchange appear to be yield-as to loreign exchange appear to be yielding to brighter prespects.

A meeting of the Clearing House Association was held at the Merchants' Bank this afternoon, to take action on the proposition submitted to it by the Committee of the Produce Exchange to the Committee of Bank Presidents this morning with a view of aiding foreign exchange. David Dows and Mr. Humphrey represented the Produce Exchange and spoke in behalf of their plan. They desired the Clearing House Association to appoint a committee of five, representing as many different banks, to buy commercial bills with bills of lading attached; and make a requisition on the Loan Committee for the issue of Clearing House certificates for the tesse of Clearing House certificates for the benefit of shippers. The pro-
